

Inspiring Leaders

Features the new professional theatre production The Mast by Lisa Evans

Inspiring Leaders builds on our award-winning formula of high impact training interventions, featuring professional theatre productions and tailored facilitation workshops. The Mast acts as a powerful catalyst to inspire people to improve their leadership performance bringing long term motivational benefits to themselves, their teams and their organisations.

Improving leadership performance

The Mast challenges leaders to explore their own language and behaviour and fine-tune the way they interact with others. It demonstrates the effects and consequences of negative leadership patterns and portrays a model of inspired leadership that motivates individuals with lasting effects.

Key elements

- Leadership as a pre-requisite for successful change and innovation
- Having a vision and at the same time delivering performance
- Making a personal difference
- Powerful and effective communication
- Developing pride in the organisation
- Enhancing performance through shared culture, vision and effort
- Respect and dignity in relation to all stakeholders.

Excellent learning methodology

Theatre is an excellent method for generating enormous energy into the training environment. We consistently receive tremendous feedback about our proven approach from many organisations across the private, public and voluntary sectors.

Research and development

The Mast was developed from research with senior leaders working in the private and public sectors, including large PLCs, the Police, NHS, Local and Central Government.

“Theatre can be a great tool for communicating complex social messages and creating understanding. The Garnett Foundation has cleverly used this medium to present issues in a way that brings meaning to a whole range of staff working at different levels in an organisation.”

Richard McCarthy,
Director General, Programmes,
Policy and Innovation,
Department for Communities and Local Government

"The live performances showed how workplace scenarios can be used in a different and enjoyable way to build understanding about people and introduce ideas for improvement."

Head of Internal Communication, Marks and Spencer

The Garnett Foundation improves organisational performance by delivering innovative and memorable productions that dramatically change the way people interact with each other, their customers and communities.

Our unique approach was developed as a change management process focusing on the increasingly important diversity agenda in the UK. Success in this area has enabled us to use our methodology to deliver equally powerful and innovative Leadership and Campaign productions across the private, public and voluntary sectors.
